HERRIOT WILL FORM CABINET

BRIAND SAYS HE IS UNABLE TO FORM MINISTRY.

BLAME ON SOCIALISTS

Ponicare Had Agreed to Participate in Concentration Cabinet and Program Had Been Selected.

Paris, June 18.—M. Edouard Herriot, leader of the radical socialists, tonight agreed to form a cabinet. Herriot accepted the mandate after M. Briand had notified President Doumergue that he was unable to form a ministry because M. Herriot did not co-operate with him in securing a concentration cabinet.

M. Briand told the International News that his failure to form a cabinet was due to the radical socialist party's refusal to permit M. Herriot to co-operate.

"M. Poincare had agreed to participate in a concentration cabinet," said M. Briand. "We had even agreed on a program. Then Herriot's party refused to allow him to participate and therefore the concentration, which I had in mind, of the well-known politicians could not materialize. I had to give up my efforts to form a ministry."

In view of the position taken by M. Herriot, it is reliably stated that M. Briand will decline to accept a post in the proposed Herriot ministry and the administration of foreign affairs must pass to another.

E. C. HAWKINS DROWNS SELF

FORMER MARYVILLE RESIDENT A SUICIDE IN NEW YORK.

ROCKS TIED TO WAIST

Ill and Penniless, Letter Contains Appeal for Another Chance to "Make Good."

Wiring to his waist two burlap bags filled with stones, Eugene C. Hawkins, 52, formerly of Maryville, committed suicide Sunday near Plattsburgh, N. Y., according to a newspaper clipping sent to the Maryville postoffice by Oliver LaFontaine, jr., of Champlain, N. Y., coroner for Clinton County.

The man was buried in Riverside cemetery at Plattsburgh, according to the New York coroner. He is believed to have been the Eugene C. Hawkins listed in an old Nodaway County history as a son of E. C. P. Hawkins. He was born here in 1875.

The father, according to the old history, came to Maryville from Mississippi in 1873, after serving in the Civil War. In 1881 he was deputy circuit clerk. The family lived in a house on the corner where the Public Library is located now. There were four brothers: William L., John M., Eugene C., and Richmond L. The latter, better known as Loren, became and is now, assistant professor of romance language at Harvard University, but all the family left Maryville many years ago and old residents do not remember where the other brothers went.

Hawkins jumped to his death into the waters of a pond formed by the West Chazy Granite Co., dam. Two hours later he was dragged out from ten feet of water by men equipped with a fishpole and a big wire hook. The newspaper clipping, from the Plattsburgh Daily Press, gives other details as follows:

Horseman His Occupation.

In Hawkins' pocket was found a passport issued Dec. 30, 1921 and entitling him to go to Mexico. On it was an easily recognizable photograph. His occupation was given as horseman and his birthplace as Maryville, Missouri.

In another pocket was a notebook with one name in it, that of Mrs. N. A. Paul, 4109 Lowell Ave., Chicago.

A letter was found in pockets of his coat on the Granite Co., dock. It was addressed to Blair Mock, Delormier Park, Montreal, and said:

"Am here and sick and in no shape to travel. See if you can get me $35 together and send it to me and I try and make good. I didn't have time take anything with me. If you send it P. O., in the name of E. C. Prentiss. There is no telegraph office here. I can go to Chicago and make good. By that time I be fit go to work as that what I am going to do no more fooling around.

"Have Wade to fix. I sent him money when he needed it."

(Signed) E. C. HAWKINS.

Hawkins had been around West Chazy for the past two days, in the recollection of Station Agent Jerry and Mr. Ring of the Dock and Coal Co. It is not known where he ate or slept. No money was found in his pockets.

Seen Picking Up Rocks.

About 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon David Hewson saw Hawkins picking up rocks on a walk alongside the Granite Co., plant. He also saw him picking up bits of wire.

Some time later Hewson heard shouting and saw Hawkins' head sink below the surface of the water. He hastened to the scene with others. The man was dead when they arrived and it took the better part of two hours to rig up an outfit which would lift him up, weighted as he was with the two burlap sacks filled with stones.

Hawkins weighed about 200 pounds and was five feet, eleven inches tall.

Coroner LaFontaine gave permission to remove the body to Brown's undertaking rooms. Telegrams will be sent to the Montreal man and Chicago woman.

WOULD RAISE FISH ON FARM

F. G. SHOEMAKER SUGGESTS ONE OR MORE LAKES NEAR HERE

SAYS IT WOULD PAY

Owner Could Operate It Or Lease To Local Sportsmen.—State Willing to Stock With Fish.

Fish as a farm crop—

This is a possibility foreseen, even urged, by Frank Shoemaker, member of the Shoemaker—Bovard transfer firm and a leader among local sportsmen.

Mr. Shoemaker makes the suggestion seriously, believing that such an undertaking not only would bring joy to the lovers of angling but would return a profit to farmers from land now giving no revenue at all.

"There must be a number of farms in Nodaway county that have from five to twenty acres of ground not good for any purpose except to make a pond or lake," he explained. "Any farmer who would build a good, substantial dam and stock the lake with young fish, then let them propagate for about two years, would find that it would pay him large returns. I know any number of men who would be willing to pay a reasonable price per pound for the fish they catch."

If a farmer does not care to operate such a lake himself, Mr. Shoemaker suggests that it be leased to a number of Maryville men for five or ten years at a "fair rental."

"There should be at least fifteen feet of water in parts of this lake, and, if possible, fed by a spring of running water," he eplained. "The dam should be heavy enough to hold a heavy downfall of rain and be permanent, and a spillway should be provided for the disposal of surplus water without loss of fish."

The dam could be built in spare time and with no great expense, Mr. Shoemaker said. The state game and fish department is always ready to stock suitable lakes, and Mr. Shoemaker estimated that in two years there would be fish in abundance, if nothing but hook and line fishing were permitted. He recommends stocking with channel cat, croppie and bass, adding that sunfish would "get in by themselves."

There is room for several such lakes near Maryville, Mr. Shoemaker believes. He cited several instances where owners of such lakes regularly supply restaurants and stores with fish each morning.

K. C. Kan., Theater Owner Goes on Trial

Charged With Violation of Ancient Ordinance Prohibiting Sunday Motion Picture Shows.

Kansas City, Kan., June 18.—The Kansas blue law "clean-up" war is on.

The first motion picture house owner, charged with violation of the ancient Kansas blue laws by running his show on Sunday, came to trial today in the climax of a crusade launched recently by the Ministerial Alliance of this city.

The threat of theater owners to operate the same law to church choir singers and organists, made Monday, is still waiting to be carried out and the operators still maintain silence as to their plan.

Frank C. Grubel, the operator who came to trial today, is the first of five against whom the ministerial alliance swore out warrants, indicated that his defense would be that the law is unconstitutional.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mutz, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Schnabel and children and Mrs. Nancy Smith motored to Clarinda, Ia., this afternoon.

CONGRESS TO QUIT JUNE 30

ADJOURNMENT DATE IS FINALLY AGREED UPON.

DELAFING FARM BILL

Leaders Undecided Whether To Remove Objectionable Features Or To Send Bill On Through.

Washington, June 18.—The first session of the Sixty-ninth Congress will adjourn on Wednesday, June 30, it was decided finally today by Republican leaders of the House and Senate.

The adjournment resolution, sending Congress home for a little more than five months vacation, will be adopted by the House Monday, under the present program, and by the Senate later in the week.

The Senators must return November 10 to hold the impeachment trial of Federal Judge George English of the eastern district of Illinois.

The agreement for the June 30 date was reached after the Senate leaders agreed to do their best to get a final vote on the rivers and harbors appropriation before adjournment.

Washington, June 18. — Farm bloc leaders were in a quandry today over whether to jeopardize the effectiveness of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill by removing its alleged unconstitutional features or to chance the fate of the entire bill to the Supreme Court.

One clause in the bill would make the payment of an equalization fee compulsory to every producer. This has been declared unconstitutional by Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho, but if the clause is taken out, leaders say the bottom will drop out of the fee principle.

Althought voting was scheduled to start today on the first of many amendments that have been offered to the bill, Senator McNary, Republican of Oregon, sponsor of the bill, was proceeding slowly and cautiuosly. If the final vote is hastened without ironing out many delicate differences of opinion, ti will be extremely difficult to muster the majority vote.

Bandit Teacher Given Long Term in Prison

Carl Keen Enters Plea of Guilty And Is Sentenced To Thirty-Five Years In Penitentiary.

Kansas City, June 18.—Carl Keen, the bandit who taught his 13-year-old brother the art of highway robbery, pleaded guilty to first degree robbery today before Judge Landon and was sentenced to thirty-five years imprisonment. Failure of witnesses who saw a man loiter around the scene of a hold-up-murder here last fall, to identify Keen as the man, caused the state to drop its investigation attempting to link him with the crime.

HE WON'T QUIT SENATE RACE

JUDGE COCKRELL REFUSES TO STEP OUT OF CONTEST.

REAFFIRMS DRY VIEW

In Letter To Anti-Saloon League Officer, Candidate Declares Proposed Poll A Discrimination.

St. Louis, June 18.—Judge Ewing Cockrell, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, has served notice on the Anti-Saloon League head there that he will not abide by the results of a state-wide poll to determine which one of the two dry candidates shall be permitted to remain in the race.

In a letter to the Rev. Parker Shields, Missouri superintendent of the League, Judge Cockrell states that he will not withdraw from the race should the poll favor the other dry candidate, Willis H. Meredith, Poplar Bluff. According to an announcement by the Anti-Saloon League sometime ago, Meredith has consented to abide by the League's poll.

Judge Cockrell, in his letter, also attacks Congressman Harry Hawes, another candidate for the Senatorial nomination. Affirming his belief in prohibition, Cockrell pointed out that the poll is being taken among those who are "especially" dry and who might be looked to to favor Meredith.

The letter also charges that Meredith was at one time a member of the state board of directors of the Anti-Saloon League, resigning to make the race for the Senate nomination. Shields, in commenting on the letter, said that Meredith resigned from the League six years ago to make the race for attorney-general.

Suspected Joints in K. C. Are Padlocked

Twenty-Five Places Closed As Result of Judge's Order—Police Start An Extensive Campaign.

Kansas City, June 18.—Bright new padlocks, barred entrance to twenty-five alleged liquor joints in Kansas City today as a result of the action of Judge Landon on application of assistant prosecutors. With police and federal dockets crowded beyond capacity with liquor cases, police have announced their intention of padlocking places suspected of being blind pigs until hearings can be held to determine how long the closing action will apply.

Twenty-one alleged joints were padlocked May 7.

Reaming of Oil Well Proves Slow Process

The process of reaming at the test well of the Quitman Oil and Gas Co., enlarging the hole from six to eight inches between the 890 and 1190-foot levels, was proceeding slowly today. It required all of yesterday to remove the eight-inch casing already in. Ten feet had been reamed this afternoon. When the reaming is completed, drilling will be resumed with a six-inch hole, but this is not expected before Sunday or Monday.

SENATE FUND STILL MOUNTS

MELLON FAHILY AND BANK SUPPLIES $149,000.

LEAGUE HIRES SOLONS

Several Senators and Representatives Receive Pay for Making Prohibition Speeches, Wheeler Says.

Washington, June 18.—The Mellon family and its Pittsburgh bank donated and lent $149,000 to the Pepper-Fisher campaign, Eric Fisher Wood, chairman of the west state campaign committee outside of Pittsburgh, told the Senate investigation committee today.

Mr. Wood testified that the Union Trust Co., and the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh advanced $75,000 to his committee in unsecured loans which have not yet been repaid.

The testimony has brought the known total cost of the Vare-Pepper-Pinchot Senatorial campaign to approximately $2,194,639.

Washington, June 18—At least eight members of Congress were revealed today as being on the payroll of the Anti-Saloon League. They make prohibition speeches and receive what Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the League, described as "honorariums."

Wheeler himself supplied the Senate slush fund investigating committee with the names as follows:

Senator Wesley L. Jones, Republican of Washington, Senator Frank B. Willis, Republican of Ohio, Senator Simeon D. Fess, Republican of Ohio, Senator Arthur R. Robinson, Republican of Indiana, Representative of William D. Upshaw, Democrat of Georgia, Representative John G. Cooper, Republican of Ohio, Representative B. G. Lowrey, Democrat of Mississippi, Representative A. W. Barkley, Democrat of Kentucky.

Wheeler was unable to furnish the scale of prices for dry speeches as demanded by Senator James A. Reed, Democrat of Missouri, chairman of the committee, and it is probable that other Anti-Saloon League officials from headquarters at Westerville, Ohio will be subpoenaed with the books of the organization.

Wheeler was subpoenaed to appear again today with the figures showing how much money the league has spent in various campaigns, including the Pennsylvania primary.

The inquiry thus far revealed to the committee that the politicians of Pennsylvania have closely followed the political advises of the late Senator Boise Penrose that some of the money should be kept on hand in safety deposit boxes for emergency purposes.

Chilean Break With U. S. Is Widened

Former President Declares Justice Has Been Denied Chile And U. S. Has Lost Friend.

Washington, June 18.—The break in the friendly relations between Chile and the United States was widened today as the resistence of the South American republic over the charges of General William Lassiter, head of the Tacna-Arica commission, grew more violent.

The blunt statement of former president Arturo Alessandri of Chile, in a statement issued here that justice has been denied Chileans and the United States has lost her friendship was accompanied by reports threatening violence to General Lassiter of Chile.

While the state department maintained silence and the Chilean outbursts continued, it is expected that a statement will be issued placing the blame for the Tacna-Arica fiasco squarely upon Chile.

JOSEPH'S SILVER CUP

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for June 20, 1926.
Read Genesis 44.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

There is more than a touch of pageantry and the setting of scenery in the stories of oriental history. The oriental rarely adopted a direct and simple course. He must set the scene and give the dramatic a chance.

In spite of our boast that our western civilization is direct and to the point and our claim for shirt sleeve democracy, whatever that may mean, we are fascinated also with pageantry and like to deal obliquely.

In the story of the reconciliation of Joseph with his brethren, in the chapter which tells how Joseph revealed himself to his brethren and finally brought them to Egypt, there is used a Silver Cup. Joseph was a diviner of dreams, a magician, a performer of miracles and he had some of the machinery of the cult. In his palace rooms was a beautiful, two-handled silver cup. The cup was engraved and on it were mysterious pictures and Egyptian signs. When Joseph had sent his brothers home after their first trip to Egypt and demanded that they come again and bring their younger brother Benjamin, he planned just how he would receive them and how he should make himself known to them. His eye fell upon his silver divining cup and he smiled and the cup then became a part of his plan.

After the sons of Jacob had returned home and the supplies they had bought in Egypt began to run short, they thought to plan for another trip. For a long time Jacob, now an old man, about 130 years of age, refused to consider their proposition that Benjamin make the trip to Egypt.

Here Judah seems to have become the leader. He told his father that Benjamin must go or they could get no more food from Egypt. He also pledged himself that the boy should return. How he kept his pledge is told in the lesson next printed at the beginning of this article.

Joseph was impatient and restless. Although second in power in the Kingdom, after the first visit of his brothers his thoughts turned back to the home at Hebron which he had left when a boy of 17. He remembered his father, whose favorite he had been and time dragged slowly until his servants reported again a caravan of strangers and told him the men were the same who had before visited him.

When he saw his brother Benjamin, Joseph could not control his feelings and almost wrecked his own well laid plans. He hastily left the room and wept. Then he set in motion the plans already made. The Hebrews were treated kindly, they were loaded with provisions tied in sacks, their money was again placed in the sacks and in the sack of Benjamin was placed the great silver divining cup.

On their way home the sons of Jacob were joyous. Their mission had been accomplished, they had secured abundance of food and Judah was especially happy because by his side rode Benjamin, Benjamin excitedly talking about his adventures, Benjamin going home to tell of the wonders he had seen.

Then suddenly a cloud of dust appeared upon the plain and underneath that cloud a troop of hard riding horsemen. The travelers were arrested, charged with betraying their hosts and the silver divining cup found in the sack of Benjamin. The decision was that Benjamin should be taken back and become the slave of the ruler.

But a change had come in twenty years over these hardbitten pioneers. Twenty years ago they sold a brother for a few pieces of silver and covered their crime with lies because they were jealous. Now as one band, led by Judah, they returned with his brother, and Judah, in an appeal which is a classic in oratory, begged that he himself be taken as a slave, but that his brother be sent home to a father who would not live otherwise.

Then Joseph sent away all the Egyptians and revealed himself to his brothers. It was a great reunion. They talked far into the night and made plans. Benjamin was again all smiles and excitement. He had been the center of a great adventure. The rupture in the family which had lasted for twenty years was healed. They were all better men and wondered at the way their God had worked to save them and the Hebrew race from starvation.

Jacob's sons returned again to Hebron. This time they not only carried loads of provisions on their donkeys but wheeled vehicles to bring back their father Jacob and his belongings. I should like to have witnessed that reunion and have seen Jacob when he was told that Joseph lived and was ruler in Egypt. They made a great caravan and the grandson of Abraham, himself an old man and head of a great multitude, went down into Egypt where the Hebrews multiplied and wrought and became a great people in numbers. They were four hundred years working out this portion of their destiny.

When reading this story it seemed to me that it was a piece of childish display for Joseph to use his silver divining cup, to set the stage, to make so dramatic the revealing of his identity and his almost unbelievable story. Yet this is not hard to understand. It was the oriental method. Nothing was done without the dramatic touch. These people loved the show and the display and the mysterious, they loved things they could not understand and laughed like children at a startling denouement.

We brag about our hard-boiled common sense and we miss a lot of fun and also fail of impression. Normal children dress up as grownups, show an imagination as wonderful fertility and naturally take to pageantry. It is in our hearts as it was in the hearts of the people of Joseph's day who were the children of history.

We wonder why God permits things to happen in exactly the same way, why he makes use of a divining cup, why he permits wars and slavery and jealousies and crime. We see no sense in the tortuous way the race of human being has to wind up and around, sometimes traveling backward, in order to reach the place prepared for us, in order to carry out God's plan.

God works now much as he did in Jacob's time. He sent Joseph into Egypt. Joseph saved the children of Abraham. After 400 years the race emerged and wound its weary way across the desert, through wars, through miseries and hardships to a great kingdom, down on the other side to ruin and still on, a wasted people, to the cross.

God still works in his own way. We do not understand why he uses a silver divining cup, but we may be happier and wiser if we have the faith to understand from His dealings with His ancient peoples that His plan is definite, that His world is moving to a glorious victory and that we are a part of His great plan.

Scripture Lesson—Gen. 44:18-45. 15.

18. Then Judah came near unto him, and said, Oh my lord, let thy servant, I pray thee, speak a word in my lord's ears, and let not thine anger burn against thy servant; for thou art even as Pharaoh.

19. My lord asked his servants, saying, Have ye a father, or a brother?

20. And we said unto my lord, We have a father, an old man, and a child of his old age, a little one; and his brother is dead, and he alone is left of his mother, and his father loveth him.

21. And thou saidst unto thy servants, Bring him down unto me, that I may set mine eyes upon him.

22. And we said unto my lord, The lad cannot leave his father; for if he should leave his father, his father would die.

23. And thou saidst unto thy servants, Except your youngest brother come down with you, ye shall see my face no more.

24. And it came to pass when we came up unto thy servant my father, we told him of the words of my lord.

25. And our father said, Go again, and buy us a little food.

26. And we said, We cannot go down: if our youngest brother be with us, then will we go down; for we may not see the man's face, except our youngest brother be with us.

27. And thy servant my father said unto us, Ye know that my wife bare me two sons.

28. And the one went out from me, and I said: Surely he is torn in pieces; and I saw him not since:

29. And if ye take this also from me, and mischief befall him, ye shall bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

30. Now, therefore, when I come to thy servant my father, and the lad be not with us; seeing that his life is bound up in the lad's life.

31. It shall come to pass, when he seeth that the lad is not with us, that he will die: and thy servants shall bring down the gray hairs of thy servant our father with sorrow to the grave.

32. For thy servant became surety for the lad unto my father, saying, If I bring him not unto thee, then I shall bear the blame to my father for ever.

33. Now, therefore, I pray thee, let thy servant abide instead of the lad a bondman to my lord; and let the lad go up with his brethren.

34. For how shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me? lest peradventure I see the evil that shall come on my father.

RESOURCES OF CHICAGO TAXES

CITY PREPARING FOR MILLION GUESTS AT CONGRESS.

WILL CONVENE SUNDAY

All Sections of United States and Score of Foreign Nations Will Be Represented.

Chicago, June 18. (United Press)—Priest and Prelate, Prince and Peasant—numbering upwards of 1,000,000—today were attracted to Chicago where on Sunday the 28th International Eucharistic Congress convenes.

From all sections of the United States and from more than a score of foreign nations pilgrims are making their way to this city for the fete of reverence to Jesus Christ in the Sacrament of The Blessed Eucharist. It is the first time that the greatest of all church gatherings has been held in the United States and only the second time it has been held on this continent. Montreal, Que., was host to the congress of 1910.

At the Montreal Congress, more than 750,000 pilgrims attended. With improved transportation facilities and increased interest throughout the Catholic World, directors feel certain that the number of visitors will exceed 1,000,000 this year.

Work of providing food and shelter and meeting places for 1,000,000 persons was a task of amazing proportions but it has been going on for many months and everything is in readiness.

Every section of the city has been canvassed for rooms in private homes for the visiting delegates. All hotel space has been reserved for many weeks. Railroads have made special plans to bring the great throng of pilgrims from both coasts and from remote parts of the United States. Food shops and caterers have ordered great shipments of provisions to provide the tables to be set for the visitors.

Headquarters for the congress during the days of careful preparation have been bustling with a large staff of workers. Figures that would astound the organizers of ordinary conventions have been carried out to just so many decimal points so that those in charge feel certain there will be no last-minute confusion.

Everything in connection with the congress is in terms of the superlative. The size of the crowd, the number of nations from which it will come, the total mileage involved, the number of clergy attending, the size of the choir which is to sing, the height of the outdoor altar before which the great throng will worship—all these are set down in figures that establish all-time records for church gathering or meetings of any description.

The entire crowd will number at least 1,000,000; nearly 30 nations will send delegates; the total number of miles traveled by the pilgrims will approximate 10,000,000; the number of clergy will run high into the thousands; the great children's chorus which is to sing the Mass of the Angels numbers 60,000 voices; and the Altar in Soldiers' Field will rise to a height of 125 feet—the tallest ever erected.

So great will the throng be, of course, that at no single time can all the pilgrims be gathered into one amphitheatre. All meetings will be divided into groups by the language they speak and the nations from which they come.

English and American delegates will meet in Chicago's great coliseum, scene of national political conventions; Italian delegates will meet in the auditorium of the municipal pier, located one mile out in Lake Michigan; and other nations will be represented at similar meeting places—the most spacious that the city can provide.

Larger gatherings will be held at Soldiers' Field, the great Municipal Stadium situated on the shore of Lake Michigan. Here approximately 100,000 may assemble at one time and on the field will be gathered the 60,000 school children of Chicago's Catholic Schools—the largest choir ever drawn together.

In splendor, too, this 28th Eucharistic Congress will surpass anything ever attempted before. No estimate of the expense has been made but virtually no limitations have been made upon those who are planning the fete.

The congress will be officially opened at 5 A. M., Sunday with the celebration of a solemn high mass in all the Catholic Churches of the Chicago diocese.

DRAMATIC EVENTS IN BIBLE HISTORY : : By Walter Scott and Harlowe R. Hoyt

Joseph and Potiphar's Wife

The wife of Potiphar fell in love with Joseph and tempted him. When he repulsed her, she charged the young overseer with insulting her. Potiphar was greatly angered by what his wife related. Joseph's denials were futile. Potiphar imprisoned him.
The chief baker and butler of Pharaoh were in prison having incurred their masters displeasure. Joseph interpreted their dreams, prophesying death for the former and high honors for the latter.
Meantime, Joseph had been made chief warden. His prophecy came true and the butler was released, promising to repay him.

SYNOPSIS.

Big Tim Burke, real estate operator, and known to his associates as a land pirate, discharges one of his young lieutenants called Pol Gailliard, because he is irritated by the latter's sleekness of appearance and nonchalant manner. Pol learns that his ex-boss covets a desirable piece of Long Island property owned by Prof. Husted, and that another land shark, Michael Cadrigan, is after the same bit of land. Cadrigan lives on the shore of Long Island sound with his stepdaughter, Veronica. His estate is across the bay from that of Prof. Husted, who lives like a hermit; Veronica is his only visitor. Cadrigan asks Veronica to discontinue calling on the old man, intimating that the old man's enemies may harm her. Noticing a sloop anchored opposite the house, Veronica suggests to her stepfather that they call on the owner. They are invited on board and their host introduces himself as Pol Gailliard, posing as an itinerant poet and artist. That night Pol runs over to the Husted house, and while ashore sees a man in a flat bottomed boat cut his sloop adrift. He rows back to his boat and releases his second anchor. On his return to shore he meets Veronica in a canoe, coming from Prof. Husted's house. He escorts her home.

INSTALLMENT XI.

AN EXCURSION BY DAYLIGHT.

Nightingale, docile and contented cat when the vessel was under way, did not take kindly to seeing the shore so near and yet so far. She was in this respect like any other good sailor, patient and philosophic when out of sight of land but highly receptive to the urge of it when close aboard. Perhaps the soft land breeze brought off the scent of catnip or the distant vocalization of other felines who had the advantage over humans in that their language holds none of that confusion of alien tongues.

"Want to go ashore, Nighty?" Pol asked about the middle of the forenoon.

Nightingale arched her back, waved a tawny tail aloft, and answered plaintively, "P'r'r'r'eow." Pol jerked the dinghy alongside when Nightingale, graciously accepting the principles of ladies first, flowed lightly down upon the thwart. As Pol picked up the oars, Nightingale, with an apologetic murmur, moved up into the bow, that part of the little craft being to her nautical experience the first to reach the shore.

Heading up the little bay, Pol rowed in leisurely fashion parallel to the unkempt short. He passed three "No Tresspass" signs conspicuously displayed, and noticed that they were new. Presently rounding a point behind which was a sheltered shallow cove, Pol came to a ramshackle jetty that appeared to serve the boating needs of a small Italian colony at the neck of Husted's point. There were perhaps half a dozen small frame houses, with an acre or two of land and outbuildings, modest dwellings that were old and well built, formerly the homes of local people who had preferred to be removed from the friction of the town or had future vision of the value of shore property and of which small lots could be had at a bargain just here.

The infiltration of thrifty Italian workmen's families had forced these out until their successors, nesting there at first in a fashion to give the place a slovenly look, had gradually improved with the process of Americanization founded on a sound basis of foreign thrift. Some of them owned their places clear; others were mortgaged, for the most part to Cadrigan's realty company.

Pol guessed he was a sort of padrone, and no philanthropic one; probably a co-religionist of sorts and understanding the language and temperament of his laborers.

Pol made fast his boat. Nightingale had leaped out light as thistledown, then, waiting for him, back arched, caressing her side against a post. She was not a cat who liked to walk alone, and she had that temperamental treasure that some deny cats to possess—affection.

She trotted behind Pol as he went along the runway. Across the road directly opposite was the best house of the lot, set back on an eminence, the ground in front of it terraced sheer from the roadside in fitted stones, and, rising for about ten or fifteen feet, the entrance way at one side, work done a quarter of a century ago when labor was not costly.

As Pol went up the entrance road he heard the patter of children's voices, a staccatto treble that suggested "peepers" in a marsh. He then caught sight of them, half a dozen, spaced as closely in age as nature permits in the offspring of one mother. They were playing about the back door with a half grown gangling pup that might have been labeled "domestic dog."

Glowing in the soft sunlight was the multicolored family wash strung out on the line in an array to suggest the bunting of a yacht dressed in its code flags for some gala. It was a Saturday, but with such a brood one wash day a week would scarcely suffice.

The pup discovered Nightingale, and lunged forward with a sort of dubious glance of bravado and a backward glance at his support. Nightingale, sure of her own, launched an offensive, sputtering war talk, and her bluff resulted in disorderly retreat to the refuge of a barrel with a plank end nailed across the bottom. The children voiced hilarious alarm, when a pretty girl of soft and slender contours came to the back door and looked at Pol challengeingly.

"Good morning," he said, politely, and got a noncommittal nod.

The children, ravished at Nightingale's singular appearance, came forward to inspect her, and she graciously received their advances. Perhaps she scented fish on them.

Pol explained his errand. "I am cruising on a little boat, and I thought you might be able to sell me some eggs, and possibly some milk."

"Sure," said the girl. "My hens are laying good now, and we can spare some milk, I guess."

Pol had brought a basket and an aluminum milk can. The girl took them from his hand, and went down the cellar steps. Pol spoke to the children. Their bright eyes fixed on him for a moment in the appraising look of childhood, then they turned their attention to the more piquant interest of Nightingale.

The girl came up with milk and eggs. "You sailing round all by yourself?"

"Yes," said Pol. "On a vacation."

"Well, that's one way to spend it. Ain't it lonesome nights?"

"I've got my cat," said Pol.

The girl laughed, showing splendid teeth. She was really very pretty, an entirely American young person, though of traits markedly Italian. "I'd be scared to death."

"Of what?" Pol asked.

"The water's spookey nights. Besides, there's lots of roughnecks along the shore."

"I discovered that last night," said Pol. His eyes had their sleepy look but missed no expression of her face, which showed at these words interest and surprise.

"Somebody bother you?"

"A fellow cut me adrift and stole my anchor."

"Well, what do you know about that!"

"Nothing," Pol answered. "I'm harmless. I was paddling round, watching for the moon to rise."

The girl laughed. "Sounds like you had a date."

"I write poetry," said Pol, "and paint a little. When you're shut up in an office all day you appreciate nature."

She considered this. "Well, nature may be grand for city folks, but I'll say I'm fed up with it."

There came a sound of hoofs. Looking round, Pol saw Veronica cantering past. She was mounted on another horse than that of the previous day. She wore a smartly tailored riding coat and skirt and black tricorine hat. She rode side-saddle. She looked up, caught sight of Pol and the girl, and waved her silver headed crop.

The Italian girl waved back. "That's Veronica Cadrigan. Lives in that big house over there. She's going to see the old nut that owns all the land from here down to the jumping off place. Say, I wonder why anybody wanted to cut you adrift. It might have been old man Husted. They let him out of a bughouse not long ago."

Pol shrugged. "I don't believe so. I wasn't bothering him any."

"Well, there's no telling what a looney may do. He don't like people near him. Too bad he can't sell or croak, or something, and let that property be opened up."

"That bound to happen sooner or later, I suppose," said Pol.

"Say, what do you do with yourself out here all alone?"

"I've been making sketches of some of these fine places along the shore, with little verses to go with them."

Former K. U. Athlete Is Free on Probation

Alexander R. Hodges Is Told He Was An "Accidental Offender" And Is Released By Judge.

New York, June 18.—Alexander R. Hodges, Jr., of Kansas City, former University of Kansas athlete, who confessed to holding up a restaurant proprietor last April because he was hungry, was given a suspended sentence today by Judge William Allen.

A touching scene was enacted when Judge Allen spoke to Hodges in a paternal manner, characterizing the youth as an "accidental offender," who, in a moment of weakness, succumbed to temptation.

Judge Allen told the youth that he was allowing him to go free, pledged only on probation for three years, in order to make happier the closing days of his mother's life and be worthy of the confidence of his many friends, who rallied to his support.

Pickering

O. G. Null.

Mrs. Ed McKee and two children are at Barnard this week, where Mrs. McKee is assisting in caring for her mother, who is critically ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Lincoln and three children returned Wednesday morning from Creston, Ia., where they had made a short visit at the home of Mr. Lincoln's brother, Oa Lincoln.

Miss Vivian Boatright came up the first of the week from St. Joseph where she has a position in the Buchanan County bank to spend a part of her vacation at the home of her aunt, Mrs. W. A. Shelman, and Mr. Shelman in Mozingo Valley neighborhood.

The ice cream supper served by the ladies of the Christian Church on Thursday evening was fairly well patronized even if the temperature was a little too low for comfort out-of-doors.

The Pickering Farm Club will give an ice cream supper Saturday evening on the hotel lawn.

Mrs. Charles Hinton went to Kansas City last week for a short visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. P. Bainum, and Mr. Bainum.

The Rev. J. T. Alsup and family of Maryville attended the ice cream supper given by the ladies of the Christian Church on Thursday evening and renewed acquaintances with their former neighbors and friends.

An extremely hard rain, accompanied by a hard wind, fell in this vicinity last Sunday evening, doing a great deal of damage by washing the fields and overflowing the lowlands. The wind also did considerable damage to trees and telephone lines. As a result of the storm farmers have been unable to work in the fields this week though cultivation of corn will probably begin on some farms today (Friday).

The paving company has made but little progress in this work thus far this week on account of muddy roads and lack of clean water supply. They have remedied the latter, however, by putting down some sand points just below the R. V. McKee spring, which will furnish a constant supply for the completion of their work. They hope to reach Canal Branch Bridge with the concrete by Saturday night if the weather is favorable. The company lost a considerable amount of sand and about 1500 sacks of cement on account of the storm Sunday evening.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, June 18.—Wheat price showed a marked advance in all positions at the close on the Chicago Board of Trade today, as the result of bullish weather conditions but the other grains all fell below yesterday's final figures.

Wheat made gains of over a cent early in the day on the strength of bullish news, but lost most of the gains before the noon hour because of the break in corn prices and the lower Minneapolis cash quotations. Reports of further rains in the Southwest, particularly in Kansas and Nebraska, and the prediction that they may continue for another three days, which will mean a considerable delay in harvesting the new crop, caused a reaction and the September future rose sharply while the other positions also registered big fractional gains.

Cash prices here in the Southwest were fairly steady but losses of more than 2 cents were recorded on the Northwestern markets.

Professionals sold corn during the last half-hour of trading and forced prices to a new low. July was sharply off while the other deliveries lost fractionally. Receipts were rather light today but farm stocks are large and crop conditions very good.

Oats registered fractionally losses in all positions after a featureless day.

Lard closed slightly lower.

Loren Schnabel to Lead Barnard Band

Loren Schnabel, who lead the Barnard Band last year has again taken the place with the band. He takes the place of H. L. Russ who goes to the Savannah Band.

Prof. Schnabel is well liked by the Barnard boys and the people of the community. He is a musician of great ability and teaches in Wyoming. He is spending the summer vacation in Maryville and the Barnard Band is very fortunate in having a man of his ability as leader and instructor during the summer months.

The band boys all enjoy working under his direction. The concerts for the season will be pepped up and the large crowds which gather in Barnard on Saturday nights will be treated to a better class of entertainment.—Barnard Bulletin.

Many Freaks Reported Following a Twister in Several Localities

While Clarinda today was reported preparing to rehabilitate the area swept Wednesday afternoon by a tornado, reports continued to come in from other sections which were hard hit by a twister believed to have been the same as that which struck Clarinda and vicinity.

A letter received this morning by Albert Kuchs from C. E. Oden, representative at Eagleville for the Nocomo Poster Advertising Co., stated that a bad wind storm traveling in a northeasterly direction cut the northwest corner of that town Wednesday afternoon about 4 o'clock. Just outside of town, ten barns, three dwellings and a church were blown away and one man was fatally injured, according to the letter. In the town itself there was much minor damage, and one of the Nocomo billboards was blown away.

The river at Princeton is "all over the bottoms," Mr. Oden wrote. He said the storm originated west of Eagleville.

At the State Teachers College, Miss Jennie Frost, Miss Sylvia Waugh and Miss Mary Scroggie, all of whom are students from the vicinity of Redding, Ia., received word that the tornado had struck near their homes.

Several houses and other buildings near Redding were completely or partially destroyed. The storm was accompanied there by a heavy rain and in some places by hail which cut the corn into ribbons. Grand river again went out of its banks and was reported yesterday as still rising. The tornado passed through a strip about a mile wide.

One of the places damaged was that of Asa Murphy, a cousin of Ursle Crockett of this city.

According to the Redding Herald, no lives were lost, as nearly everyone saw the tornado coming and took refuge in caves. Some of the freaks of the storm are reported by the Herald as follows:

"The Bryan place was a complete wreck, clothing, furniture, etc., scattered over forty acres. One peculiarity at the Bryan home was that the pump was pulled from the well, broken up and scattered about the place, and the well was sucked dry of water.

"The storm then struck the J. A. Miller place, taking most of the barn and other buildings and lots and doing some damage to the house. The garage was picked up and carried away, leaving his new car sitting apparently untouched. Some of his car tools that were in the car were found out in the pasture, a considerable distance from the car.

"Mail Carrier D. M. Harris was west of the Asa Murphy place when the storm hit him, lifting his team and mail wagon five or six feet from the ground, turning and twisting them over several times. Mr. Harris was considerably bruised up.

"Mrs. Matt Finch was returning home, driving a team to a carriage, and had some of the children with her. She managed to get the children and get against a big tree and were out in all the storm. How they escaped injury seems almost a miracle. The team was found about one-fourth of a mile northeast of the house, one of them dead. A large timber of some kind had passed completely through the animal.

"Mr. Finch and the other children had gone to the cave just before the storm came. Enough wind come into the cave through the small ventilating tile at the top to blow jars of fruit off a shelf in the cave. In the smokehouse near the cave was a quantity of timothy seed in a box, and after Mr. Finch came out he found his hair full of this seed.

"We saw a large maple tree that had been uprooted at the Matt Finch place and it left a hole almost large enough to bury a horse.

At Clarinda the death list has been placed at two. The report that a man had been killed at the fair grounds apparently was untrue.

Putting Tournament Won by Miss Dykes

Miss Edwyna Forsyth Is Second In Ladies' Day Event at Country Club —100 Women at Luncheon.

Miss Mattie Dykes won the blue ribbon yesterday in the putting tournament which featured the second Ladies' Day at the Maryville Country Club. Miss Dykes' score was 19 for nine holes. Miss Edwyna Forsyth took the red ribbon with a score of 20.

A miniature golf course had been laid out in front of the clubhouse and the contestants used no clubs except putters. The greatest distance between holes was fifteen feet.

The winner of the tournament also had the distinction of being one of four to make the "hole-in-one club." The others were Miss Mae Corwin, Mrs. Marve Curnutt and Mrs. W. J. Montgomery.

There were twenty entries, the scores of others following: Mrs. Luther Forsyth, Mrs. F. M. Townsend, Mrs. Montgomery, and Mrs. Byron Costello, each 24; Miss Corwin, Mrs. Howard Wray and Miss Leola Miller, each 25; Mrs. Curnutt and Mrs. D. J. Thomas, each 26; Miss Ora Barmann and Mrs. O. K. Bovard, each 27; Miss Nell Hudson, 29; Mrs. Arthur Brewer, Mrs. Lauris Eek and Miss Clara Sturm, 30; Mrs. J. F. Colby, 31; and Mrs. George H. Colbert and Mrs. O. M. Watkins, 35.

Mrs. M. E. Ford was in charge of the tournament, while Mrs. W. A. Rickenbrode, Mrs. Forrest Gillam and Mrs. Arch Frank were members of the luncheon committee. More than 100 women were present at the 1 o'clock luncheon. There were a number of parties numbering from four to sixteen. The next ladies' day luncheon on July 1 will be in charge of the following committee: Mrs. Earl Barmann, chairman, Mrs. G. L. Wilfley and Mrs. F. M. Townsend.

The putting course laid out yesterday will be retained for future events.
